

WE ARE ALL DIFFERENT

Since Jesus set the model of evangelism and it is without judgment
Then shouldn't the concern be if someone is saved.

The woman at the well had five husbands and Jesus' only concern was whether she was honest.

If someone is true about their feelings toward another and their heart is strong with love for God and true faith and there is not doubt in their soul they are saved because all they have to do is believe then who are we to be judge and jury.

Finding a moral ground in the Bible is acceptable only when it meets the requirements set down in that time.

Just because openness is not shared in the gospel
does not mean it isn't there to witness.

Are you so willing to condemn someone who believes.

There, at the well, was the most simplistic example of love and acceptance.

The Law was that Christ was not only not to speak to a woman but a Samaritan also.

If He is willing to break the Law of doctrine why can't we.

We cannot judge, we cannot decide for anyone but ourselves.

That's God's job.

Forgiveness for bad choices is what we all want.

When other humans can't or won't, God will and does.

Then what is the difference between murder and life choice.

Some people have no choice and God forgives murderers.

Why would there be such a judgment against those who are different because the Bible gives us doctrine as a code for how life should be lived.

Times change, life changes, we are all people under the same God.

He created each and every one of us, He loves us as we are.
